Shops and Houses

With the indignation of youth against the instinct of oppression as its theme, Mr. Frank Swinnerton has conceived an absorbing story of modern life in an English suburban town, near enough to London to be the home of city men. It is exquisitely humorous and reveals so many "secret and subtle things" that one is made to marvel at the extraordin-

Dangerous Days

'Natalle Spencer was giving a dinner. She was not an easy hostess. Like most women of futile lives, she lacked a sense of proportion, and the small and unimportant details of the service absorbed her. Such conversation as she threw at random, to right and left, was trivial and distracted." This is the opening paragraph of Mary Roberts Rinehart's latest book, a 400-page novel dealing with American life today,
